Central Bank Digital Currency Policy-Maker Toolkit

Download PDF

The World Economic Forum's Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC) Policy-Maker Toolkit seeks to address the need for a concise CBDC decision guide that provides comprehensive and risk-aware information to policy-makers. This document serves as a possible framework to ensure that any CBDC deployment fully considers the costs as well as the potential benefits, appraising a multitude of risks and evaluating deployment and governance strategies, alternative solutions and other salient factors. Notably, it is not exhaustive and instead intends to serve as a complement to additional research that any policy-maker considering CBDC should conduct.

An isometric illustration on a light blue background. It features a large laptop on the left with a document and a gold coin on its screen. To the right, a person stands next to a stack of gold coins. Further right, another person stands next to a smartphone displaying a document. In the background, there are floating icons of a credit card, a smartphone, and a document, all connected by faint lines, suggesting a digital financial ecosystem.

The WEF spelled out their vision of the future in 2016:

Welcome To 2030: I Own Nothing, Have No Privacy And Life Has Never Been Better

World Economic Forum Contributor

By Ida Auken

Welcome to the year 2030. Welcome to my city - or should I say, "our city." I don't own anything. I don't own a car. I don't own a house. I don't own any appliances or any clothes. It might seem odd to you, but it makes perfect sense for us in this city. Everything you considered a product, has now become a service...

In our city we don't pay any rent, because someone else is using our free space whenever we do not need it. My living room is used for business meetings when I am not there...

Shopping? I can't really remember what that is. For most of us, it has been turned into choosing things to use. Sometimes I find this fun, and sometimes I just want the algorithm to do it for me. It knows my taste better than I do by now. When AI and robots took over so much of our work, we suddenly had time to eat well, sleep well and spend time with other people...

Once in a while I get annoyed about the fact that I have no real privacy. Nowhere I can go and not be registered. I know that, somewhere, everything I do, think and dream of is recorded. I just hope that nobody will use it against me...

China's 'social credit' system ranks citizens and punishes them with throttled internet speeds and flight bans if the Communist Party deems them untrustworthy

Clamping down on political dissent will be more “efficient” under a CBDC because all cash will be declared obsolete

Justin Trudeau has deep ties with the WEF.

Leadership lessons from Canada's Prime Minister Justin Trudeau

The WEF takes a dim view of those who fail to thrive in the digital economy:

“The question of economics and politics in the coming decade will be what to do with useless people?”

“How will they find meaning in life when they are worthless?”

“My best guess is a combination of drugs and computer games”

Another “solution” is euthanasia:

Live and Let Die

Jan 13, 2009

1. Should a person be able to terminate his own life? To what extent would a liberal society allow self-determination?
2. Is a legal framework regulating euthanasia and suicide necessary?
3. In regard to the ageing of the population, how much should palliative care cost? Can medically assisted suicide be ethically legal?

De Jong called the interest a show of public support for efforts to loosen the criteria around euthanasia to make it easier for elderly people who are not terminally ill to legally end their life.

Rosa Koire saw this coming over a decade ago:

Founded “Democrats Against UN Agenda 21”

“Interim step is regionalization = governance by unelected boards”

“Due the COVID experience, they digitalized the world more in the last 10 weeks than in the last 10 years”

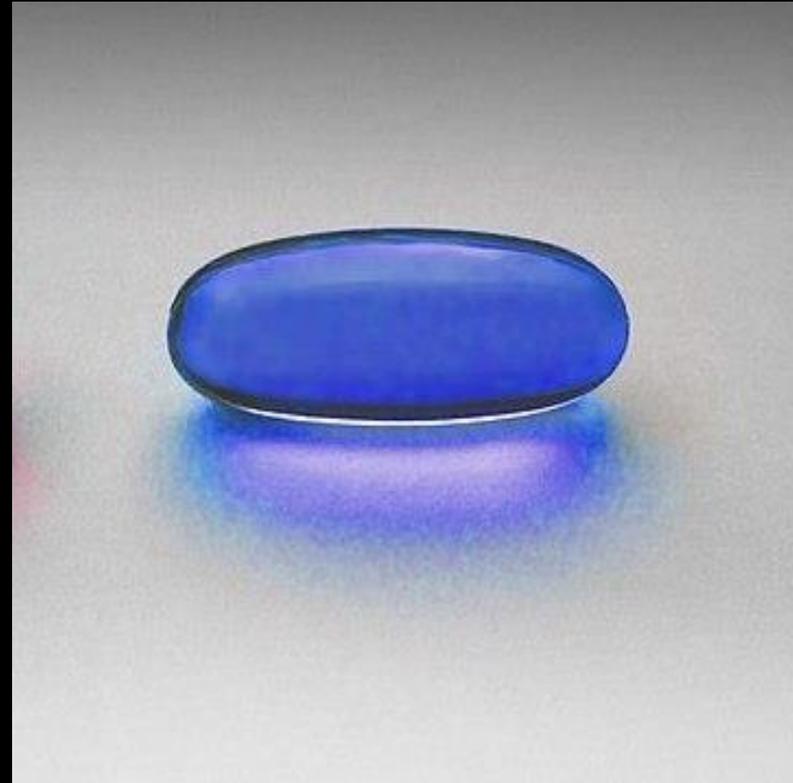

In 2005 Koire was elected to a citizens' oversight committee to challenge the fraudulent basis for a proposed 1,300 acre redevelopment project in which 10,000 people live and work in Santa Rosa, CA. Over the course of the legal challenge, she became aware of the source of the planning revolution she had observed over more than 10 years: UN Agenda 21
